It appears that Mrs. SAGE has about as much sense about dollars as her husband had.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN will not fonetize his name until after the next Presidential election; then it will probably be BRINE.

THE Ledger Man yesterday celebrated "Labor Day" by working only 16 hours. Ordinarily, he manages to get through in 18.

If Mr. BRYAN ever had the ghost of a chance for being the next President, his fool speech favoring Government ownership of the railroads killed that ghost as dead as a Yarmouth bloater.

THE HON. WILL A. YOUNG, Chairman, Dictator-General-and-Boss-of-the-Ranch of the late Democratic Congressional Convention, is one of those blood-and-thunder politicians who hasn't learned that a man cannot make friends for his favorite by heaping personal abuse upon the other fellow.

"THE Tariff Question is very closely allied to the Trust Question, and the reduction of the Tariff furnishes an easy means of limiting the extortion which the Trusts can practice," said Mr. BRYAN in his New York speech; and he might have added, with truth, that it furnishes also an easy means of reducing the "extortions" which some American workingmen practice by placing them in competition with the poorly-paid workingmen of Europe and Asia, and in closing up the workshops of America.

It will take thirteen billions of Mr. BRYAN's big silver dollars to buy the railroads that he wants the Government to own. Who will furnish the money?

THE Chicago Postmaster, in order to facilitate the delivery of letters, has abandoned the habit of "backstamping" them. The Maysville Postmaster might follow suit—much to the delight of those who find their pretty pictorial postcards mutilated and often ruined by a hideous backstamp, the whyness of which no one can understand.

THE principle of the "open shop" will be applied to the Postal Service, according to a decision reached at a conference in Washington between Postmaster BUSSE of Chicago and Acting Postmaster General HITCHCOCK and Second Assistant Postmaster General SHALENBARGER.

Postmaster BUSSE's visit was brought about by the proposed formation of a National Labor Union of Postal Clerks in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

The determination is that so long as the Postal Clerks or other Postoffice employees conform to the rules of the office, and do not attempt to coerce or molest those who do not enter the Union, there will be no objection to employees affiliating with the labor organization.

It was expressly stated, however, that the Department would afford the fullest protection to those who do not see fit to join the Union.

NO SUCH STOCK.

"Algernon is interesting," said the stock broker's daughter.

"What does he talk about?" inquired the father.

"He's ever so well posted in Shakespearean quotations."

"Young woman," said the financier, sternly, "don't let him deceive you. Don't you let him make sport of your ignorance. There isn't any such stock on the market. I ought to know, for I've been on the Exchange long enough."

Sour Stomach

"I used Cascarets and feel like a new man. I have been a sufferer from dyspepsia and sour stomach for the last two years. I have been taking medicine and other drugs, but could find no relief only for a short time. I will recommend Cascarets to my friends as the only thing for indigestion and sour stomach and to keep the bowels in good condition. They are very nice to eat."

HOLD FINAL REUNION

THE PENNSYLVANIA VETERANS
MEET FOR THE LAST TIME.

Twenty-Six Survivors of the Ninetieth Regiment All That Are Left of Twelve Hundred Men.

Philadelphia.—The survivors of the Ninetieth regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, have held their last muster. Only 26 men of the rapidly dwindling regiment of 1,900 men were able to attend the reunion here Saturday night and heard Col. Jacob M. Davis announce that it was their last supper call.

It is the first veterans' association to yield to the ravages of years in this state. The cafe in which the veterans gathered Saturday night presented a pathetic scene. That the absence of dead comrades might be felt less keenly, the 26 veterans brought their wives, their children, and some of their grandchildren to the banquet. Thus, there were 80 persons present in addition to the 26 survivors, and they lent a spirit of cheerfulness to the occasion which otherwise would have been filled with nothing but gloom.

When Col. Davis, the patriarchal leader of the survivors, arose to make the speech tears filled his eyes.

"Boys," he said, "we're getting too old, and those of us that are able to get around are so scattered we can't come together any more."

He paused, and his eyes roamed over the faces of the veterans at the table. Then he looked at the opposite wall.

"This is our last banquet. We have got to bid one another good-by."

The listening veterans placed their arms over the shoulders of their comrades as Col. Davis recounted the deeds of the "Ninetieth."

"For more than three months we traveled from one point to another," he said, "and finally faced the enemy at Front Royal. Then we fought at Cedar Mountain, Thoroughfare Gap, Bull Run, Chantilly, Antietam, South Mountain, Gettysburg." Then the colonel's voice faltered, for it was at Gettysburg that one-third of his men were lost. "—And Mine Run—" added the veteran, and again he had to pause—"Mine Run—where our regiment was annihilated."

It was true. Of the original 1,200 men who had enlisted in the Ninetieth, they had been so scattered by death, disease and the fortunes of war that only 110 faced the enemy at Mine Run. Of that number either were killed or taken prisoners. The remainder were transferred to another regiment, and the Ninetieth existed in name only.

Capt. G. W. Devlin was chairman of the banquet committee which had received post cards from the veterans who could not attend.

"It will be impossible for me to attend, as I cannot walk on account of rheumatism," wrote one.

"March is a hard month for an old man, and I can't venture out at night," came from another.
